Praeda-52 was created in a secret bunker off the coast of Japan in 20XX. He was designed to be future proof with a goal of helping to govern the unregulated Yakuza who were operating at higher volumes than ever before.

For a brief period of time, the country's government was successful in culling the Yakuza. But unbeknownst to the government, the various Yakuza families were cooperating underground, formulating a plan that would allow the capture and reprogramming of Praeda-52 in order to recapture their former power.

When the time came, a vicious battle was fought between the Yakuza families who had pulled together and the country's military. In the end, the Yakuza came out triumphant. And though their numbers dwindled, they reveled in their victory and successful capture of Praeda-52.

During Praeda-52's reprogramming, the scientists discovered a cavity within his chest. Upon further inspection, they realized that it was a prototype of a connection that would allow for a human consciousness to be uploaded.

When the Yakuza Lords were made aware of this finding, they took a vote and Lord Tatsu (Tatsu is derived from old Japanese meaning dragon) was deemed worthy to be uploaded into Praeda-52. He courageously took the plunge. And, after the merger, Lord Tatsu's human body collapsed; lifeless on the floor. At the same time, Praeda-52 roared to life with Lord Tatsu speaking from within.

Over the next millenia, countless others have been uploaded into Praeda-52 – both willingly and others...less so. And while this has kept Praeda-52 supremely powerful, it's not without its faults. Praeda-52 has started to become mentally unstable.

Anxiety and paranoia are creeping in and he's losing control.

Lady Tora was raised in the shadows of the Yakuza. She's the bastard child of Byrnes and was held in high regard due to her high intelligence and hot temperament as a child. As she grew, so did her desire for power. And while the fact that Byrnes was only a figurehead was known within the Yakuza, this was a fact kept from the rest of humanity and Lady Tora used this to her advantage.

With Lady Tora's inside information and knowledge of the true source of Praeda-52's power, she exiled herself from her family and started the Circuits with the sole purpose of killing her father, destroying Praeda-52 and seizing control of all their operations.

Thus, GoldTooth was born. Built as a tribute to Lady Tora, GoldTooth strikes fear in all who are in her presence. She's the most technologically advanced robo created to date. Though she is without cognisance, she is confident, to the point of arrogance and looks down on all those outside of the Circuits. And much like Lady Tora, GoldTooth is hot tempered and quick to kill.

With Praeda-52 in her sights, there will be a trail of blood everywhere she goes.

The Techos reside in the less desirable areas and depend on even less desirable forms of crime for profit. They push dirty tech and back-alley upgrades that live in an ambiguous space and traffic...anything and everything that can earn them a buck. And within this world lies countless individuals and gangs that are looking to make a name for themselves and to survive through any means necessary.

But these Techos are a particularly brutal bunch devoted to bloodshed and violence. And it is through these beliefs that they survive and gain power and the means to create a monstrosity such as Chonker.

It was out of the necessity to create rivers of blood that Chonker was created. He is the embodiment of their way of life. He is their Warmachine. With each step, the ground trembles and people cower in fear. He is death incarnate. And he is there to help the Techos reach their lofty goals of total annihilation.
